12. COVID-19 RISK SITUATIONS

What happens if I am above 38° in a Temperature Check control?

- If you are above 38°C you will be directed to the Testing Station located at P3 and will have the temperature checked again after 10 minutes.
- If your temperature is still above 38°C you will undergo an Antigen test to certify you are Covid-19 free.
  - If the Antigen Test is negative, you will be given a bracelet confirming the test is negative and will be granted access to the arena.
  - If the Antigen Test is positive:
    - The accreditation will be automatically deactivated.
    - The Laboratory will activate the Official German protocol:
      - The person will undergo a PCR test.
      - The person will be sent to the hotel/accommodation and will wait for the result.
      - If the result is negative, the person can quit quarantine and the accreditation will be activated again.
      - If the result is positive, the person will keep in quarantine, following German law.
- During quarantine you will not be allowed to leave your house or accommodation, nor receive guests.

What should I do if I suspect I may be infected with COVID-19?

- A dry cough and fever are among the most frequent symptoms. However, a series of additional symptoms such as difficulty breathing, a cold, muscle and joint pain, a sore throat and headaches are also possible. Symptoms such as nausea, abdominal pain, diarrhoea, conjunctivitis, swollen lymph nodes and drowsiness (somnolence) have been reported less often. Many of those affected temporarily lose their sense of taste and smell. In cases with a severe progression, affected persons develop pneumonia and need to be hospitalised for intensive care.
- However, these symptoms and their manifestation vary from patient to patient. Yet some infections are completely asymptomatic.
- From the moment you notice you are experiencing symptoms that often accompany COVID-19, you should reduce your contact with other persons to the bare minimum, so as not to expose them to the risk of infection. Get in touch with your Manager and your Manager must reach out to their main contact at EuroLeague Basketball. Once EuroLeague is notified about your sickness, you will be given instructions on what to do next.
- Do not hesitate to seek medical advice should your medical symptoms worsen (difficulty breathing, high fever). In case of emergency, dial 112.

What happens if you are COVID-19 positive?

If you have been diagnosed with COVID-19, EuroLeague Basketball will activate an action plan consisting of the following:

- Tracing all the contacts the person has been in touch with through the Accreditation System and the collaboration of the infected person.
- Individuals who are tested positive are required to immediately inform all people* with whom they have been in close personal contact with for the prior four days since the test was done.

*Only people who have been more than 10 minutes and at less than 1.5 meters without wearing a mask, or people who have been together in a poorly or non-ventilated room for a long period of time.

- All the contacts of the positive media member will be notified and if they comply with the criteria mentioned above will undergo a RAT test.

Due to Health and Safety protocols the press conference room capacity will be very limited.
